

A WOMAN WILL WAKE THEM UP

CALIFORNIA'S STATE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION SAYS MEN DIRECTORS SOMETIMES ARE LAZY

United Press Service
SACRAMENTO, Sept. 30.—"A good woman is no better than a good man, on a board of school directors, but sometimes where we have a lazy, inefficient man director, it is a good plan to put in a woman or two to wake them up," says Edward Hyatt, state superintendent of public instruction.

Hyatt made this statement when he received a letter from Mrs. Mary Sumner Boyd of the National American Woman Suffrage association, inquiring whether or not women outnumbered the men members of school boards in California.

"We have few women trustees in California," said Hyatt. "I do not believe more than one school trustee in twenty is a woman."

"If they are mothers, women can naturally make good school trustees. But then again, sometimes the wrong kind of woman gets on a board, and makes all kinds of trouble, just as bad men trustees. You cannot say that a woman is going to make a good school trustee because she is a woman."

Maybe British Use This Tractor Against Germans

British forces in their tremendous drive against the Germans on the west front, it has just developed, have used some kind of enormous American agricultural tractor, which they have armored and sent against the Germans like a land monitor. This is a tractor made in Peoria, Ill., and those used by the British government were made by the same concern. The idea was developed by Winston Churchill long ago. How successful the American tractor has been in crossing the trenches and slaying Germans the British have not yet reported.

DECLARES WAR NOW MUST GO TO A KNOCKOUT

different thing to look forward as he did, and know the beating couldn't be avoided during these months when it seemed the finish of the British army might come quickly.

"Germany elected to make it a fight with England. The British soldier was ridiculed, held in contempt. Now we intend to see that Germany has her way. The fight must be to a finish—to a knockout."

Trooping his colloquialisms, the half smile fading from his face, Lloyd George continued in a more serious vein.

"The whole world, including neutrals of the highest purposes and humanitarianism with the best motives, must know there can be no outside interference at this stage. Britain, asked no intervention when she was not prepared to fight. She will tolerate none now that she is prepared until Prussian military despotism is broken beyond repair. There was no regret voiced in Germany over the useless slaughter. There were no tears by German sympathizers when the few thousand British citizens who never expected to be soldiers, whose military education started only a few months previously, went out to be battered, bombed and gassed, to receive ten shells for every one they could fire—went out, fought like sportsmen without even a grumble. I repeat, that there was no whimpering then, and the people who are now moved to tears at the thought of what is to come, watched the early rounds of the unequal contest dry-eyed. None of the carnage and suffering which is to come could be worse than the sufferings of those allied dead who stood the full shock of the Prussian war machine before it began to falter.

But in the British determination to carry the fight to a decisive finish there is something more than the natural demand for vengeance. The inhumanity, the pitilessness of fighting that must come before a lasting peace is possible, is not comparable with the cruelty that will be involved in stopping the war while there remains a possibility of civilization again being unseated from the same quarter. Peace now, or at any time before the final and complete elimination of this menace, is unthinkable. No man and no nation with the slightest understanding of the temper of this citizen army of Britain's which took its terrible hammering without a whimper or grumble, will attempt to call a halt now."

"But how long do you figure this can and must go on?" Lloyd George was asked.

"There's neither clock nor calendar in the British army today," was his quick reply. "Time is the least vital factor. Only the result counts—not the time consumed in achieving it."

"It took England twenty years to defeat Napoleon, and the first fifteen of these years were black with British defeat. It will not take twenty years to win this war but, whatever time is required, it will be done, and I say this recognizing that we have only begun to win. There is no disposition on our side to finish the hour of ultimate victory after the first success. We have no delusion that the war is nearing an end. We have not the slightest doubt as to how it is to end."

"But what of France? Is there the same determination there to stick to the end, the same idea of fighting until peace terms can be dictated by Germany's enemies?" Lloyd George was asked.

The war secretary matched each finger of one hand with each finger of the other, and as he turned his chair slowly to gaze out over the khaki dotted throng in Whitehall, it seemed the interruption had stemmed the flow of conversation. There was a full minute's pause, and as the chair swung around again the reply came in a voice and manner impressively grave.

"The world at large has not yet begun to appreciate the magnificence, the nobility, the wonder of France," he said. "I had the answer to your inquiry given me a few days ago by a noble French woman. She had given four sons—she had one left to be given to France. In the course of my talk with her, I asked her if she didn't think the struggle had gone far enough. Her reply, without a moment's hesitation was, 'The fight will never have gone far enough until we have made a repetition of this horror impossible.' That mother was voicing the spirit of France."

"Yes, France will stick to the end. I suppose America's conception of France and the French soldier before the war was as erroneous as the British idea. I suppose you, too, regarded the French soldier as excitable, brilliant in attack, but lacking dogged staying qualities."

"Nothing was more unwarranted than the popular idea of the Frenchman as a poor defensive fighter. History has never justified this idea, but there will be a new appraisement, a new appreciation when the real heroism, nobility and genius of the defense of Verdun is fully understood. France has fought the longest wars of any nation of Europe, and her history itself is assurance enough that she will hold to the end."

"And Russia?" "Will go through to the death," interrupted Lloyd George.

"Russia has been slow to arouse, but she will be equally slow to quit. The resentment of the Russian against having been forced into war is deep. He has neither forgotten nor forgiven the fact that this happened when he was ill-prepared and unsuspecting. No, there are, and will be, no quitters among the allies."

"Never again!" has become our battle cry.

"At home the suffering and sorrow is great and is growing. As to the war zone, its horrors are indescribable. I have just visited the battlefields of France. I stood, as it were, on the door of hell. I saw myriads marching into the furnace. I saw some coming out of it, scorched and mutilated."

"This ghastliness must never be reenacted on this earth, and one method of at least answering that end is the inflicting of such punishment upon the perpetrators of this outrage against humanity that the temptation to emulate their exploits will be eliminated from the hearts of the evil-minded amongst the rulers of men."

Prosecutor Will Be Governor of Georgia

HUGH M. DORSEY

Hugh M. Dorsey, who when solicitor general of the Atlanta criminal court, prosecuted Leo M. Frank for murder, was nominated for governor of Georgia in the state wide primary by an overwhelming vote. Thomas E. Watson, once populist candidate for president, who conducts an anti-Jewish and anti-Catholic publication at Thompson, Ga., kept the Frank case and the anti-Catholic issue to the front while urging the nomination of Dorsey. Dorsey and his managers, however, insisted that he was not running on the Frank case, but on a platform of law enforcement.

Mrs. C. Lund, Mrs. F. Stanley, Mrs. W. E. McCurdy and the hostess.

The Art Needlework Club met on Wednesday afternoon with its president, Mrs. C. M. Ramsey. The afternoon was delightfully spent in needle work and discussion of the new books to be circulated among the members this year. Besides the members present, Mrs. Emily Curtis of Oakland, Mrs. Cash of Portland, Mrs. W. C. Fanning and Mrs. R. H. Anderson of Merrill, Mrs. William Houston and Mrs. Will C. Hurn of Klamath Falls. The members present were Mrs. Geo. Whitte, Mrs. George Haydon, Mrs. R. H. Dunbar, Mrs. Geo. Chastain, Mrs. H. Newham, Mrs. Carl G. Cummings, Mrs. J. Fred Goeller, Mrs. W. E. Fought, Mrs. George R. Hurn, Mrs. E. S. Phillips, Mrs. W. W. White, Mrs. F. M. White, Mrs. A. W. Peil, Mrs. S. T. Summers, Mrs. Arthur Wilson, Mrs. C. C. Hogue, Mrs. S. Edward Martin.

Forewarned

"If we are going to be married you must give up smoking," she said.

"Yes," he agreed.

"And drinking, and your club."

"Yes."

"And playing cards for money. Now, doesn't anything else suggest itself to you that you will give up of your own accord?"

"Yes."

"What?"

"All idea of getting married."
